

KeyLlama USB Premier & Forensic Quick-Start Guide

Installation

Simply connect the KeyLlama to the USB port of the computer and plug the keyboard into the KeyLlama. The KeyLlama will automatically begin recording keystrokes. Please note: The USB Keyboard must be connected to the KeyLlama to record or retrieve data.

Access Recorded Data

1. Open any word processor or text editor to a blank page
2. Type "kbs" holding down all 3 keys at the same time for 10 seconds.
3. The KeyLlama will mount itself as a flash drive. At this point, it is normal for the keyboard to stop working. In Windows use My Computer to open this drive, then open the "log.txt" file you find there. If you wish, you may save the log to your hard drive using your mouse. You may also delete the "log" file and a new blank one will be created. Note: Do not delete the "config" file without first understanding its function.

When done, unplug the KeyLlama for 5 seconds and then plug it back in. Wait 10 more seconds to regain keyboard operation and continue recording keystrokes.

Troubleshooting

Make sure that:

1. You're using a USB keyboard (not a PS2 keyboard with an adaptor) and it is plugged directly into the KeyLlama. If you wish to read it on a laptop, you still must connect a USB keyboard to the KeyLlama to put it into flash drive mode.
2. You are holding all three keys down at the same time and that caps lock is not set.
3. Try disconnecting all other USB devices except the mouse and keyboard. USB printers are especially prone to interfering. If the keylogger works once the other devices are disconnected, try reconnecting them with the printer and the keylogger in opposite corners of the USB hub as shown:
